

VLAN 30 must not reach the finance server — but must still reach everything else

A standard ACL sees only who sent it, so near the source it cannot tell the two servers apart. An extended ACL names the destination too, so it is safe at the source — and saves carrying doomed traffic across the network.